Sen. Testin: “Gov. Evers Disappoints Wisconsin Taxpayers”

Once again, Governor Vetoes Tax Relief

Tomah, WI – Working and middle class taxpayers across Central and Western Wisconsin were optimistic about getting some relief after a $250 million tax cut passed both the Assembly and the Senate last week.

Unfortunately for them, additional tax relief won’t be coming this year due to Governor Evers. On Wednesday, the Governor vetoed the measure, instead prioritizing increased spending over the concerns of taxpayers.

“For the second time in less than thirteen months Governor Evers has vetoed a tax cut that would have benefited Wisconsin’s middle class,” noted Senator Testin. “Thanks to the persistence of Republicans in the legislature, we were able to pass a tax cut in last year’s budget, but it’s clear that this isn’t really a priority for the Governor.”
